Read the passage. Correct any words that have been spelled incorrectly. Can you find all ten?

Last week, our class visited a museum in a new locateion near the city. Before the trip, our teacher gave us lots of informateion about the history of kings and queens. The best part was learning about the king's coroneation many years ago. There was even an ilustration showing the royal family riding through the streets.

In one room, we saw beautiful decorateion made from gold and silver. Another room explained how each generaiton of people helped to build the country. We also learned about the growing popleation of the city over time.

Suddenly, we heard a loud vibratoin under our feet. It was part of a science display that showed how a safe detoneation works in mining. At the end of the visit, our class made a small doneation to help the museum create new exhibits for the next generation of children.

How confident are you with this week's words?
